WESTWOOD — UCPD officers reported that their week of sitting on their asses at Royce has finally proven useful as they arrested a passerby for thinking about Palestine. “I mean, you know the P in ESP stands for Police, right? Mind-reading’s a

New UCLA Policy Moves “Free Speech Zone” To Middle Of The 405

BY GABE MCNEILL
September 12, 2024

WESTWOOD — After the wave of pro-Palestine protests that swept campus last year, Chancellor Julio Frenk has announced a new policy that limits protests to a “free speech zone” located in the middle of the 405.

“Unfortunately, the first amendment requires us to give you sissy liberals a space to protest,” Frenk proclaimed from the free speech zone, barely being heard over the cars flying by. “The safer, stronger UCLA we’re creating with this zone is no place for divisive acts of free speech, especially when they get in the way of us making a shit ton of money. We wouldn’t want Boeing or other weapons companies to feel like they’re not welcome to speak their minds here.” At press time, Frenk had been run over.

Opinion: There Should Be More Female Frats For Hey Mamas Lesbians

BY CLAUDIA BLOOM
December 10, 2024

UCLA Greek life is undeniably captivating. During rush, inspired, I found myself at an impasse, deciding where I would fit in to all of this. Sororities? Not enough drinking games. Frats? I’m a woman; there is no way I could join without permanently being locked in on watching my Solo cup. Nevertheless, I envy the budding homoeroticism and borderline degeneracy of the brotherhood; there is something beautiful about 10 am shotgunning and pretending IPA doesn’t taste like piss. Rest assured, my aversion to joining a sorority is not intended to put down other women or be a pick-me. Rather, it finds its origins in feeling alienated from them on the basis that most sororities are rather heterosexual. I’ve already tried joining women’s rugby. It wasn’t enough. Ultimate girls were all already fucking each other. So I propose an alternative — a sisterhood in the style of a frat, a sanctuary for those who want floors sticky with beer and littered with used carts, walls adorned with fishing tapestries. The overall UCLA community will benefit from the creation of a female frat. No longer will our campus have a so-called “masc-shortage”, they’ll all be concentrated in one place. As a bonus, move-in each year will happen swiftly, as sisters will have U-Hauls readily available. Until a female frat Gamma Alpha Epsilon (GAE) is established, I will not rest. I will not be able to shake my pining for a commune of women who all wear backwards hats and cut muscle tees, kiss sometimes, and believe that Patrick Bateman is “literally me”.

BREAKING: EVERY BITCH IS FROM THE BAY AREA

BY ESTHER CHO
October 26, 2024

WESTWOOD — After a thorough examination of UCLA’s student population, it has been concluded that every bitch is from the Bay Area. “Every time I introduce myself to someone, they say they’re from the Bay Area. When I ask what city, they get nervous and mumble something weird like Humboldt,” said distressed and confused out-of-state first-year student Linda Yorba. “Then they get frantic and start going on about how they ‘just say the Bay Area because that’s what people understand.’ I don’t know how much more of it I can take.” At press time, Yorba was absent, having called in sick after reporting visions of faceless, baggy-jean-wearing entities whispering “hella” to her over and over.

Idiot Slob Wears De Neve Outfit To BPlate

BY FIONA RUANE
October 21, 2024

WESTWOOD — Giant, stupid, idiot slob, and first-year European Studies major Bruce Gordito recently degraded himself and everyone around him by wearing an ugly, sloppy De Neve outfit to his BPlate dinner.

“My tiny friends and I were perturbed in our statement belts and thrifted maxi skirts,” whispered Depop gentrifier Laurel Green-Spiegelman. “I’m not saying you have to be boots-down-house for your de la olla beans, but there are standards. If we all took off our spoon rings and Silver Lake baby tees, what would happen to us? To our dining hall?” At press time, Green-Spiegelman and her Bay Area friends were seen chanting “away, you sloven oaf!” as Gordito retreated toward the De Neve LA hot chicken sandwich where he belongs.

Heartbreaking: Most Eager Lecture Participant Also Dumbest

BY SHAYNE SWEET
November 16, 2024

WESTWOOD — In this week’s lecture, Marcus, the most active participant in the class, engaged in a heart-breaking display of earnest desire to learn as he asked a question so stupid the professor had to step outside to process it. “He asked if pregnant women could hear their baby’s thoughts. Last week he asked why fish don’t drown and if nonbinary people can get cooties. I don’t know how much more I can take,” shared Professor Ballacs, who has been teaching linear algebra for 85 years and has never encountered a student so bright-eyed and empty-headed. “I’m trying to figure out if this is a Good Will Hunting secret genius kind of thing, but all signs are pointing toward no.” At press time, Marcus attended office hours and tried to solve the door code like a math problem while Professor Ballacs considered an early retirement.

New Religion Course Taught By Boy Who Experienced Empathy For First Time After Shroom Trip

BY RANDALL S. TOBIAS
November 12, 2024

WESTWOOD — After tripping balls at a Phish concert and realizing other people have feelings, fifth-year general studies major Gunner Helloden was offered a tenure-track position teaching RELIGN 420: Empathy. “The university is funding research into how my actions might affect other people. Have you ever thought about that before?” said Helloden, interrupting a Gender Studies lecture to grace them with his blond dreadlocks. “Ever heard of enlightenment? Yeah, I’ve already achieved it. Pfft, Buddha has nothing on me. Chakras ... third eye ... society ... Man, don’t even get me started about the plight of women. ...Chakras.” At press time, Helloden was seen offering extra credit to students who have achieved ego death, but only if they buy drugs from him.

UCLA Housing Signs Dorm Furnishing Contract With Temu

BY ZACH FISCHER
AND DAVID DOUTMAN
February 28, 2025

WESTWOOD — In anticipation of even less housing space and even more budget cuts, UCLA Housing has attempted to cut costs by signing a dorm furnishing contract with Chinese online shopping company Temu. “They said we could get a $200 reward if we spent $10 on an 8-pack of the most uncomfortable underwear in history. All we had to do was send out an invitation link to the entire student body. I’d say that’s well worth it,” said Trip L. Tenenroom, Vice Assistant Secretary Vice Chancellor of Housing & Hospitality Services at UCLA. “Then it turned out the $200 was actually a credit worth $2 if you spend $100 in the next 20 days, but we had already invested so much time and money that we decided to go with Temu for our furnishing anyway. My secretary said Alibaba might be a better option, but that sounded vaguely Arab which we can’t really be seen as supporting these days.” At press time, the mailroom was seen overflowing with hundreds of packages small and cheap enough to bypass American import restrictions.

Diversity Win! Woman In STEM Also Soulless

BY AUDREY GARCIA
October 19, 2024

WESTWOOD — The UCLA Office of Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion’s recent review on gender disparities in STEM reached the conclusion that the women in STEM are just as soulless as the men. “After only one Girls Who Code summer program, I knew I had found a sisterhood of technologically skilled and empathy-devoid ladies to enter the male-dominated defense industry with!” said fourth-year computer science major

Lara Collins, who plans to shatter the glass ceiling and any civilians beneath it. “We scientific gals have got to stick together to prove that not all women place value on frivolous things like arts, culture, and ethics. My abysmally low EQ does not define me, nor does it hold me back from programming lethal weapons with my girlies by my side.” At press time, Collins had made “herstory” at her internship by uplifting and empowering the female shareholders of Lockheed Martin.

INCREASINGLY DESPERATE CLUBS BEGIN SELLING ORGANS ON BRUINWALK

WESTWOOD — After a decline in sales of Por-to’s Bakery rolls and Krispy Kreme donuts, increasingly desperate clubs have begun selling their own organs on Bruinwalk. “Support the Daily Bruin with our two-kidney-for-one deal! Sleazo was performing open-heart surgery on an unsuspecting first-year with a Kerckhoff wooden knife.

Westwood Spotlight: This One Year Old Restaurant Does Mexican Food the Expensive Way

BY SAM RUSK
March 13, 2025

LOS ANGELES — Westwood’s latest resident North of the Border Cantina and Grill opened the doors of its Le Conte location last Friday, serving up adventurous Texas-Mexican fusion cuisine at the humble price of $30 per hard-shell taco.

“Finally, a restaurant that caters to both el wallet AND el low spice tolerance,” commented UCLA legacy first-year and Wisconsin native Doyle Barron, rolling the ‘r’ in ‘restaurant.’ “Plus, by supporting a small, Latinx-owned conglomerate, I can eat good while doing good!”

This new student hotspot doesn’t skimp on the ambiance nor the prices. Nestled between a derelict office space and a seasonally derelict Halloween store, North of the Border is the perfect destination for a special dinner with out-of-state parents afraid of “urban gang violence.” The table-side guacamole carts, bottomless marg towers, and a self-serve salsa bar stocked with everything from mild to regular sour cream guarantee you go home full, your wallet goes home empty, and your parents go home disturbingly hammered.

But NotBCaG isn’t just about food—it’s a bold political statement on diversity, community, and resistance. As the pink neon sign next to the bathroom indicates, they’re here to “Make Tacos, Not War.” From the moment guests enter, they are given a taste of culture in the form of a hand-painted mural, or “fresco”, of a wolf with a Frida Kahlo unibrow and sombrero howling at the moon, designed by a local white artist.

“After moving to LA, I experienced a real culture shock. I couldn’t find a place that served authentic mid-

JULIO FRENK FIRES SELF IN COMPLIANCE WITH UCLA'S NEW ANTI-DIVERSITY HIRING POLICIES

BY SHAYNE SWEET
March 21, 2025

WESTWOOD — This morning, Julio Frenk showed his dedication to following UCLA's new anti-diversity hiring policies by firing himself. "When I was hired, there was a lot of emphasis on the fact that I was the first Latino chancellor. Today, I'm proud to announce I'll also be the last," shared Frenk, whose ChatGPT prompt for his own diversity letter was "write a statement about how being Mexican and also evil is important representation." "I see all of UCLA as an equal community. I treat myself as I treat my students, which is why I'm choosing to turn myself in to the UCPD for no crime at all." When asked if he supported the UC Regents' policies even when they actively harmed his own community, Frenk was unable to provide a response due to the boot stuck deep down his throat.

All Hail! God-King Julio Frenk Ensures Only Correct Speech Allowed

BY EDITORIAL BOARD
February 13, 2025

Hear ye! Hear ye! Rejoice! For our powerful leader, Julio Frenk, has banned all wrong speech on campus. No more will we have to determine what words are "good" or "bad" anymore. No more will we have to deal with those pesky little things called "thoughts!" Glorious God-King Julio Frenk has eased that burden on our minds and souls.

O, what simple commoners we are. Not privy to the machinations of our handsome and dashing leader in his blue void. We can only put our souls, our faith, into his gentle, warm hands. His brilliant idea of making this decision unilaterally, without input from the rest of the (frankly unnecessary) school administration, proves both his bold courageousness and

UCLA Reaffirms Commitment To Free Expression By Suspending Student Protests

BY MAGGIE KWAN
February 12, 2025

WESTWOOD — In a video filmed from his blue void, Chancellor Julio Frenk reaffirmed the campus's commitment to free expression by announcing the suspension of both undergraduate and graduate Students for Justice in Palestine. "I know it's important for all students to be able to exercise their first amendment rights, but I'd also like to be able to pick and choose which students are able to do that," said Frenk, creating a list of the "good" student groups. "Discourse is important, except if it's discourse against me. That's violence." At press time, Frenk was seen giving Daily Bruin writers a list of approved headlines for the next day's paper.

Julio Frenk Promises Undocumented Students He Will Do "Absolutely Nothing" To Help Them

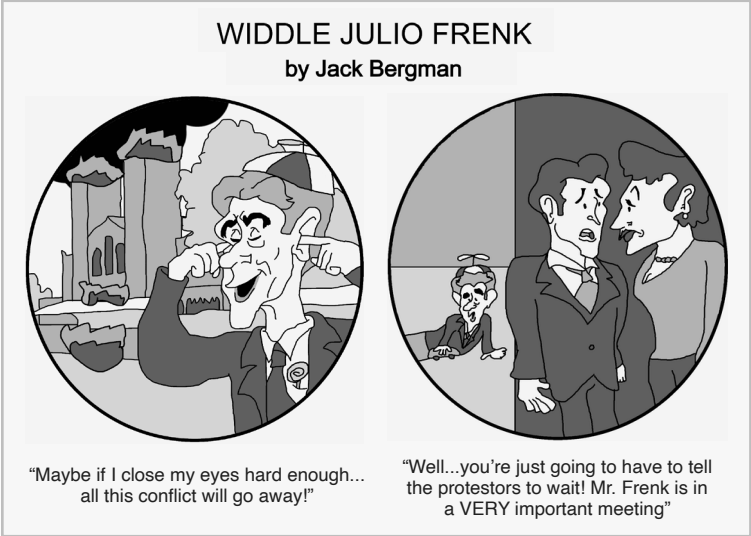

BY GABE MCNEILL
March 5, 2025

WESTWOOD — After demands from the undocumented student group IDEAS for the Chancellor to meet with them, Julio Frenk has announced in a campus-wide email that he will do "absolutely nothing" to help undocumented students. "Hello Bruin family. Please be assured we are watching the actions of the federal government closely, and you will get multiple page-length emails about how we are monitoring the situation," Frenk announced in a video statement, while donning a riot helmet. "I hear the concerns of our campus members that are not quite documented, and I want to reassure each and every one of them that they will always be able to pay tuition. The Bruinbill is the only documentation a True Bruin needs. Next!" At press time, Frenk was hurrying over to engage in his next UCLA Connects Listening Exercise.

Intrepid Daily Bruin Reporters Find Out Julio Frenk's Favorite Color

WESTWOOD — After a grueling investigation that involved bugging meeting rooms, undercover operations, and wiretapping, the Daily Bruin has made headline news announcing that they found out Julio Frenk's favorite color. "I'm pleased to report that this char-treuse-loving bastard is gonna be exposed to the world. We spent a historic and unprecedented one and a half hours on this investigation, even going deep into the second page of Google," claimed second-year veteran Daily Bruin reporter Dick Malone while taking a long drag of a cigarette and staring wistfully out the window. "I'm worried that they're going to try to take me out. I'm in too deep. Just know, if they find me dead, it wasn't suicide, no matter what they say." At press time, Julio Frenk was sending chartreuse-colored expulsion papers to student protestors.

Health Tip: Swallow Your Zyns

BY RANDALL S. TOBIAS
April 16, 2025

The great historian Howard Zynn once said, “Dissent is the highest form of patriotism.” Revising the revisionist, I say, “Dis Zyn is the highest form of things that belong in my mouth and stomach.” That’s right folks, doctors all across the world are encouraging people to swallow their Zyns. As a former cigarette chomper, I found myself dissatisfied with the grainy texture of both Virginian and Turkish tobaccos. That’s why I’ve opted to suck, chew, and swallow flavored oral nicotine pouches.

There are a myriad of health benefits one gets from ingesting these buzz sacks of nic. For one, it gets your gut biome super domed; all of the bacteria can lock in better when they’re digesting sweet brewskis, which pair so nicely with the Zyns. Additionally, nicotine increases blood flow, which is why many geriatrics are slurping ‘em up to help with their erectile dyfunctzyn. Finally, my good pal RFK Jr. (whom I met at an orgy for bears) was telling me the other day that Zyns are excellent at combating the measles.

Back where I’m from in Zyndianpolis, Zyndiana, my tummy-wummy could feel the sweet burn of wintergreen, citrus, coffee, and cinnamon flavors. Now that I live in California, Governor Gavin Newscum has oppressed me into only swallowing bland flavors like “cool,” “smooth,” “patrick-bateman,” and “idontlike-homelesspeople.” Even with this neoliberal, flavorless bullshit, I’m still grateful that I can lick up the juices of my sweet upper-decky lip cushions.

Next time you’re chowing down on your yogurt-based concoction at De Neve, consider sprinkling a couple of Zyns on top as a healthy treat. Don’t listen to Big Pharma, and always remember that in God’s country, Jesus died for our Zyns.

I Lived It: My Face Card Got Declined

BY DANA BADII
December 2, 2024

WESTWOOD — It’s 3:30, and I just got out of class to go to Kerckhoff Coffeehouse. It’s been a long day and I need my one (1) allotted treat before they stop taking swipes. I get in line and make it about halfway through before I realized I don’t actually have my Bruincard on me.

It’s my turn, and as I recite my order I’m trembling with excitement when they ask “cash or card?” right after. I finally speak up.

Ugh! What’s a young, charming satire writer and part-time DJ to do?

I know, I’ll whip out my trusty rusty face card! I’m sure I’ll be just fine. I’ll just bat my eyelashes and twirl my wavy tresses as the register beeps and they’ll wave me through with a smile.

“Actually, no thank you,

I’ll be paying with my face card today.”

A blank stare on the barista’s face beckons me to position my face over the card reader, ready to hear it chime. A few seconds pass by, and no sound.

“Try again?” Would they say that to Zendaya?

This cannot be happening. My face card’s worked so hard to get me BruinBash tickets, an iClicker subscription, and noticed by Bruin Walk missionaries — it HAS to pay for some Kerckhoff coffee. But even after flashing my pearly whites and my vaguely hazel eyes to the staff, there’s nothing I can do.

“Joe ‘n Go is nearby if you wanna try that?”

I can think of no greater punishment.

I leave Kerckhoff in a huff, burdened by the failing infrastructure of this university. Looks like today won’t be a treat day...but hey, there’s always tomorrow.

Westwood Celebrates Grand Opening Of Empty Storefront

BY SHAYNE SWEET
March 11, 2025

WESTWOOD — Last weekend, people lined up around the block for the grand opening of Westwood’s hottest new empty storefront. “When the family-owned restaurant that was in this space for 30 years shut down, I was kind of sad, but I’m so glad that there’s absolutely nothing to replace it!” shared fourth-year labor studies major Jen T. Fryer, who had been waiting in line to see the space’s new pop-up: a nest of raccoons that had collected discarded Fat Sal’s sandwiches. “When I was choosing colleges, it was really important for me that the surrounding area had zero nightlife, one trivia bar, and twelve corporate coffee chains in a one-mile radius. It’s a dream come true!” At press time, the empty storefront had unfortunately shut down due to rent increases.

THE WESTWOOD ENABLER ENDORSES JOE BIDEN FOR PRESIDENT

BY DAVID DOUTMAN
November 4, 2024

Most presidential elections are, at their core, about two different visions of America. This one is different. This election calls into question the very existence of the United States of America as a country, as a people, and as an idea. And who better to ensure the survival of our great nation than the man who has survived longer than any other sitting president? It is undeniable that Our President Joseph Robinette

Biden, Jr. is the most qualified man for the job, having served this country for twelve years longer than J.D. Vance has been alive. His political prowess is so unparalleled that you'd be forgiven for assuming he has multiple doctorates in international relations, queer studies, African history, and quantum theory. Joe is a simple working-class boy from Scranton, Delaware, who has fought against the establishment for his entire career within the establishment. Naysayers might claim that "He isn't even running anymore" or "Kamala Harris is the Democratic candidate" or "He's basically a walking corpse at this point" or "He's one of the most unpopular politicians in the country." To this, we say: that's a bunch of malarkey. Fuck your polls, fuck backstabbing Democratic lawmakers, fuck the wealthy donors, fuck the mainstream media, and fuck you. Vote for Joe Biden or you're nothing but a lying, dog-faced pony soldier.

UCLA OFFERS PERMANENT STUDY ABROAD PROGRAM

BY ZACH FISCHER
AND SHAYNE SWEET
March 6, 2025

WESTWOOD — Today, UCLA’s administration announced its generous offering of a permanent study abroad program for international students. “As this God-chosen nation’s #1 public university, we’re proud to offer a global education to all our students whether they want it or not,” shared Julio Frenk, offering students a mandatory work-study opportunity in El Salvador. “We want to support our international students, which is why we’re choosing to eliminate their homesickness by just sending them home. And what’s great is that students will never have to attend another boring lecture, do a pesky exam, or go to this school ever again!” At press time, the study abroad program was being offering for the low price of $49,000 and your home, belongings, education, and all future job prospects.

Opinion: If You’re Buying Valentine’s Day Gifts From The Hill Top Shop, You Don’t Deserve Your Girlfriend

BY SHAYNE SWEET
February 14, 2025

Fellas – I know midterms are tough. I know it’s so hard to feel romantic in these trying times. I know you straight up forgot you had a girlfriend. But please, don’t get tempted by that heart-shaped Nerds Gummy Cluster box in the Hill Top Shop. Is the packaging cute? Sure.

Is it an adorable gift in addition to other, better gifts? Absolutely. But if you are solely buying your girlfriend a Hill Top Shop gift on Valentine’s Day, I sincerely hope your girlfriend breaks up with you and you also get hit by a scooter (preferably her scooter.)

Your girlfriend deserves better. She’s listened to every single Drake song you’ve ever recommended to her (and you’re wrong, his early music is not better.) She’s helped teach you how to have conversations that don’t start and end with “what’s your major?” She consoled you when you failed an open-note take-home midterm. So please, for the love of god, at

Opinion: They Should Let The New Pope Have Gay Sex
Once So He Can See If It Should Still Be Banned Or Not

BY GABE MCNEILL
May 7, 2025

With the death of Pope Francis, the first “woke pope,” the cardinals will soon enter conclave to pick the newest pontifex. I liked Pope Francis. You could tell he was really trying to reach out to the youth, even to the point of using queer slang, claiming there was an “atmosphere of faggotry” in the Vatican. Slay Papa! However, while there are some liberal cardinals looking to become the next queen diva of the Catholic Church, they all unfortunately believe that homosexuality is a sin. And with the declining amount of young people joining the church, can they really afford this?

I’m not gonna argue that the Bible says it’s ok to be gay or whatever. Leviticus 18:22 says “Do not have sexual relations with a man as one does Opinion: Half The Government Is Fired And I Still Need A Real ID?

BY EMMA SEARING

Elon Musk,

If you can find any room in your Grinch-sized heart, please do your job for once. If you are trying to make the government efficient, why not go after the picture of bureaucracy and overhaul the DMV? You could be actually improving efficiency instead of defunding the national parks so much that people are going to be using cactus fronds to wipe at the toilet in Joshua Tree this summer.

Real federal tyranny is whoever is allowing the DMV employees to keep me there for an hour reviewing paperwork — all before telling me I can’t even get a Real ID because I forgot my preschool transcript. True patriots shouldn’t have to track down four electric bills, proof of the last time they pooped at home, and 18 hours of CCTV footage just to get the same exact ID with

Trend Watch: Withdrawing All Your Money From The Bank

BY DAVID DOUTMAN
November 4, 2024

WESTWOOD — In light of the recent economic chaos brought about by the Trump administration’s sweeping tariffs, many on social media have taken to a new viral trend: withdrawing all your money from the bank before it gets even worse. “This is a tough time for us all, but we can get through it if we just remember the first rule of economics: banks never run out of money,” said Usain Teller, creator of the YouTube channel ‘Economics For Dumbfucks,’ most famous for a video explaining how a quarter is worth more than a dollar bill. “At this point, just put your 401k on crypto or something. Cumcoin is up, you know.” At press time, Cumcoin is down.

J.D. Vance Just Happy To Be

BY MAGGIE KWAN
March 27, 2024

WASHINGTON, D.C. — When reached for comment about his inclusion in the Houthi PC Small Group Signal chat, Vice President J.D. Vance admitted he was just happy to be included in a group chat for once in his life. “I kept telling my boss that I think he forgot to add me to the Cabinet’s group chat, but I’m pretty sure he blocked my number,” said Vance, sending Pete Hegseth a Word Hunt request. “So when I got added to the ‘Bomb Yemen’ chat, it was nice to know that I’m still considered ‘one of the boys.’ I am one of the boys, right? Right?” At press time, Vance was left on read when he asked what the move was for tonight.

“The Democrats Ought To Do Something,”
Says Democratic Lawmaker Doing Nothing

BY MAGGIE KWAN
March 10, 2024

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In the wake of President Trump’s recent executive orders, Democratic lawmakers unanimously decided to finally stop him as long as each registered Democrat donates at least $25 to their local representative. “Twitter keeps telling us to grow a spine, but I’ll have you know that we’ve just assembled our finest octogenarians to investigate this issue, and we anticipate seeing some results by the 2030 midterms,” said House Minority Leader Hakeem Jeffries, an hour into the New York Times Mini. “In the meantime, while we crochet pink hats, silently hold up signs for the four people watching C-SPAN, and muster up the courage to say “fuck” in front of our constituents, make sure you’re registering all your friends to vote! Vote blue no matter who!” At press time, all Senate Democrats were unreachable for comment due to their 2 p.m. nap.

Opinion: Election Day Is Less Exciting Now
That I’m Not In Eighth-Grade History Class

BY SOPHIE CRIVIER
November 5, 2024

Picture this: It’s 2016, Harambe just died, an app called Musical.ly was taking the world by storm, and there’s one thing that everyone is asking: Hillary or Trump.

Now imagine you’re in eighth grade and have to write a harrowing two-paragraph essay about the campaigns for your required government class. While it was all fun and games out on the field during lunch, in history class, it was war, and I was on the good side.

Look, 2024 is fun and all, but I just miss arguing with other middle schoolers who also didn’t know what they were talking about. There’s nothing quite like the high of parroting exactly what your Opinion: Too Bad, AFSCME! We Are Spending Five Million Dollars On A New Quarterback

BY CHANCELLOR JULIO FRENK

April 21, 2025

Dear Bruin Community:

At UCLA, promoting the well-being of the Bruin family is our top priority. As your Chancellor, I do all kinds of things to help our school, like staying in my chair during meetings and uploading short-form hair tutorials to my YouTube channel. You may also see me volunteering, where I collect skin flakes for UCPD and other police professionals.

I do these things because I believe every Bruin, regardless of race or economic background, deserves an opportunity for success. However, they also deserve Big Games where we score a lot of points. That's why I'm excited to announce our latest community initiative: spending five million dollars to buy a new quarterback for the football team.

I think this is my favorite initiative so far, because it helps the whole Bruin family. Imagine it like this: UCLA Football is the father, and I am the mother. Students and employees are the children who have to listen to and obey us. UCLA Basketball is the uncle. Raising our Bruin children is hard, because they are babies and need lots of attention, and so sometimes Mommy and Daddy deserve a vacation. This time, we are going to Knoxville, Tennessee, and our vacation costs five million dollars.

This quarterback vacation will be very good for us for two reasons:

First, our new quarterback can read the defense and throw the ball really far, which is good because I am the only other quarterback at UCLA and I cannot do those things. Now I can move to linebacker, which is my natural position anyways. Hopefully this will help us win more than five games this year.

Second, I finally get to write my name on a really big check. I like writing and spelling my name, and so I bought a giant one which has enough room to write my name on it several times. In fact, the check is so big that if I curl up just right, I can conceal my entire body behind it, such that only a small tuft of my coiffed grey hair is visible. This means that I can hide in my office and leap out at people who are trying to steal the check for themselves.

Since each of these reasons are good enough on their own, having both of them makes this a pretty obvious score to me. Still, Executive Vice Chancellor and Provost Darnell Hunt keeps telling me about these "backseat chancellors," who, for some reason, want me to spend my football money on raises for UCLA employees. This doesn't make any sense.

Think about it: if a large group of workers each get five more dollars an hour, they are only a little bit happy, but when one new quarterback gets five million dollars, he is really happy and wants to play for us. Good! I like watching The Game and seeing all the strong bodies try so hard to get the football. Hopefully this clears everything up.

We are One UCLA,

Julio Frenk

STRAIGHT BASKETBALL PLAYERS UNIONIZE AFTER HIGHEST GAY-PER-CAPITA WNBA DRAFT

BY AZALEA MORRIS

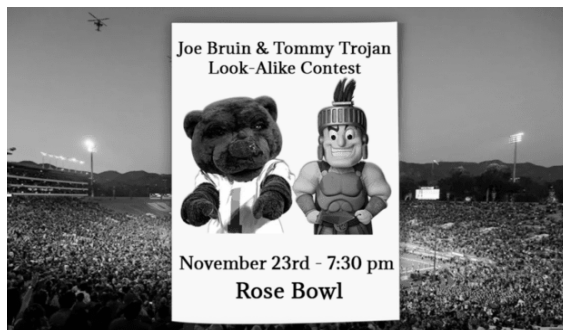

April 15, 2025

NEW YORK CITY – Straight WNBA players are more outnumbered than ever after the 2025 Draft, sparking the formation of the Straight Union of Ballers (SUBs). "I'm feeling extremely blessed and highly favored to have been picked in the first round, and in a state of gratitude to have been part of the First Team All Lesbian Cohort. More Ls in the W, all glory to God! Let's go!" said star player Peyton Beckham, as she adjusted her sparkly suit and embraced her rumored girlfriend. "I do understand why SUBs was created. They're scared. HA! No but seriously, I feel bad for them; you really have to be gay these days. They definitely need a support system to handle all of our unrivaled gay power and to absolve themselves of all of our PR hiccups, like when I tore my ACL from being knee-deep in the passenger seat." At press time, the undrafted 6'7" Sedona Prince was seen attempting — and failing — to join the SUBs, following her unsuccessful "Gay to Straight Transfer Portal."

Opinion: Athletes Should Only Ride Scooters If Their Team Has Won A Championship In The Past 10 Years

BY FIONA RUANE

November 3, 2024

You blink and they appear: a 250 pound, 6 foot 5 monster hurtling toward you with an empty, dog tagged backpack at 45 miles an hour. Sometimes you see them walking—no, shuffling—along the sidewalk, unable to lift their Nike slide-clad feet on their way to their Sociology of the Midwest class after failing to unlock their six-cylinder Gotrax because they lost the key (again). They work so hard, they can barely make it to Haines Hall after an exhausting morning eating their free, catered buffet meal at the athlete center where they were gently caressed and told what good little boys and girls they were. They work so hard, and yet, do they?

UCLA Football hasn't won an NCAA championship since 1954, so should they really be walking less? Call me harsh, but I don't think we should be telling the team that lost to Indiana 13 to 42 that cardio doesn't matter, that they need to save their energy so they can be more efficient when they fumble the ball again and miss another 30 yard field goal. They're already tagged like cattle, would it be so hard to get an Athletic Trainer to shepherd them up Janss Steps as part of their 2000 steps a day?

And to golf, basketball, track and field, baseball, men's tennis, soccer, I don't want to see you guys near anything motorized until

I see results. Scooters are for winners, not for red-shirt first-years who lost to Michigan State after scoring zero goals (looking at you, men's soccer). I could do that. Ahead is a list of UCLA Championship teams who actually deserve to run me over on Bruin Walk. To everyone else, get to work.

STUDENT STARVES TO DEATH AFTER RENDEZ BURRITO PREPARATION TOOK TOO LONG

BY AMANDA BAQUIR
January 28, 2024

WESTWOOD — Last Tuesday, first-year Labor Studies major Eleanor Rivera tragically passed away from starvation after her Rendezvous West chicken burrito took too long to prepare. “The app said that it would be ready in 45 minutes,” said a friend of Rivera’s at her funeral, sweating bullets while ordering a burrito bowl on his phone. “But after 45 and a half minutes had passed without her burrito, she dropped dead. Maybe if she had just gone to De Neve and ate some Flamin’ Hot Cheetos Pizza instead, she would still be with us today.” At press time, the burrito was still waiting for release.

Gayley Heights Burns Down After Roommates Make Really Long Chain Of Power Strips

BY DAVID DOUTMAN
March 28, 2025

WESTWOOD — On Thursday, UCLA apartment building Gayley Heights went up in flames after a mischievous band of roommates assembled an unusually lengthy chain of power strips in their cramped 3-bedroom 9-person apartment. “In our defense, we thought it would be funny,” said Harold Kopp IV, the de facto leader of the all-male gender-inclusive roommate group. “And it was.” At press time, students continued to search the ashes for the remains of their now slightly overcooked Trader Ming’s frozen Mandarin Orange Chicken.

member and new president Jerry Gorz. “We thought we’d do an all-black clothes day to really hype the club up, and the midnight dash is a time-honored Jaywalking Club tradition. We just don’t know what went wrong.” At press time, the reformed jaywalking club had announced a surprise march onto the 405 in honor of the lost jaywalkers.

20 Dead, 3 Injured In Fight To Enroll In MATH 31B

BY MAGGIE KWAN
February 20, 2025

WESTWOOD — 20 first-years have died trying to secure the last five MATH 31B lecture spots for the 2025 Spring quarter. “My thoughts and prayers go out to the victims, obviously, but at least it means less competition for enrollment next quarter,” said first-year computer science major Dee Odorant, ready to not attend a single lecture if she gets off the waitlist. “I know the professor’s Bruinwalk rating is in the negatives, but if one of the others succumbs to their injuries, I bet he’ll give me a PTE.” At press time, a vigil was being prepared for the lives lost in MATH 32A’s second pass.

Dorm Resident Hospitalized After Automatic Toilet Flushes Prematurely

BY ZACH FISCHER
March 9, 2025

WESTWOOD — The sixth-floor communal bathroom of Sproul Cove was struck by tragedy Friday evening after a horrific flush-sensor malfunction in the second stall hospitalized a resident. “I had just finished a full season of Breaking Bad on 1.5x speed and was about to scroll some Youtube Shorts, when all of a sudden I heard the loudest sound imaginable and felt the wet hand of Satan pulling me into the abyss.” said second-year Annal Fischer while recovering from his rectum rectification surgery at Ronald Reagan Medical Center. “It wasn’t until after a guy in the shower stopped playing Drake at max volume that people heard my screams and called 911.” In response, the Office of Residential Life has replaced the motion detectors with ChatGPT-powered sensors that ask a little too nicely before flushing.

Stealing Is Morally Wrong Unless It's From The Hill Top Shop

BY GABE MCNEILL
January 22, 2025

The Hill Top Shop is essential to surviving on the Hill. Need laundry detergent? Cheeto Puffs? A month-old refrigerated sandwich? You go to the Hill Top Shop. There's no way in hell I'm making that long-ass walk down and back to Ralphs just to satisfy my desperate need for a Diet Coke. We have no other option. The UCLA store runs the hill with the iron fist of totalitarianism.

Now, we all know stealing is bad. Stealing from orphans, babies, et cetera is rightly frowned upon. But as Thomas Jefferson once said, "If a law is unjust, a man is not only right to disobey it, he is obligated to do so." I have no other option to satisfy my intense, American munchies, and they dare charge five fucking dollars for a single Snickers bar? Ten bucks for a stick of deodorant? Twenty smackers for the smallest bottle of DayQuil known to man? That's unjust. That's anti-American. They hate freedom. It's my patriotic duty to shoplift from the Hill Top Shop. Every time I walk out of there with my pockets stuffed full of Nerds Gummy Clusters, I carry the spirit of the American Revolution with me. I can practically hear George Washington marching next to me, with drummer boys and flutists keeping the beat of our stride.

The Hill Top Shop is taxing me without representation. I give UCLA sixty thousand American dollars every single year and it has the nerve, nay, the gumption to overcharge me seven dollars for a half-bag of gummy bears? Tyranny! I look down on those weenies who grab a Celsius with nary a pocket to hide it in and don't even glance to see if the employees are looking at them. These are traitors to the cause of freedom. Redcoats! Join me, my patriot brothers, as we dump UCLA's entire supply of Sleepytime tea into the Sunset Rec pool. Ride with me, ride!

Week Two Is Over, I Can Finally Drop The Mask And Start Skipping Classes

BY AMMI LANE-VOLZ
October 15, 2024

Well, it's finally here. Week Two. I attended just enough class to know which professor is serious about attendance policies. I've dropped all my 8 a.m.s, 10 a.m.s, and 12 p.m.s. It's finally time to be true to myself: I can start skipping my classes again.

At this point in the quarter, all my excuses for missing class are fresh, and I have a wealth of grandparents' deaths to lie about. Grandma Bobbi? Dead. Professor? Guilted. Extension? Granted. I'm not doing any of that Zoom shit, either. (My dog ate my laptop and wifi router.)

Be real: no one is studying anyway. D's get degrees, as they say. Going to class is just an excuse to get dressed up and spend $6 on mid-ass Kerkhoff coffee. Once everyone else gives up at midterms and starts wearing sweatpants to campus, the veneer of student life will fall, and you'll all come to accept your true, class-skipping selves, just like me.

No more Mr. Nice Guy. No more mask. I've already set a pattern of being 20 minutes late to every class I'm enrolled in, so no one will notice once I disappear completely. I hope my professors can understand that deep down, this is who I've always been. I can't wait for next week, where I stop trying to convince myself to read the lecture slides.

This "College" Shit Is Nothing Like Community

BY MAGGIE KWAN
October 15, 2024

I arrived at UCLA like many first-years: bright-eyed, bushy-tailed, and convinced that my four years at college would be just as magical as the six seasons (and one movie) of Community. And after being at college for over a month now, I can confidently say that this place is a Total. Fucking. Dump.

I keep trying to make this school more like Greendale, but when I set up a pillow fort in Powell, I got arrested for starting an encampment. I've used Dine n Dish to encourage De Neve to serve chicken fingers so much that I'm pretty sure they blocked my number (I want my chicken finger mafia group, so sue me). And don't take this one out of context, but the only time I actually wished there were Nazis on campus was when I was at Sunset Rec trying to find the magical hidden trampoline.

It's like this school doesn't even care about us, and that's streets behind.

I mean, Greendale was also a four-year college where I could get a bachelor's degree, so what the fuck am I doing here in California (the worst state), dropping $80k on this place every year? Honestly, the only thing that's stopped

I Am Going To Squish My Roommate Like A Bug

BY AZALEA MORRIS
December 6, 2024

Oh my god. My roommate just looked at me. Why in the fuck ass did he just do that. He might as well be taking a steaming shit crap on my face, taking all the clothes out of my drawers, wiping his butt ass on them, and launching them out the window.

I've communicated very intelligibly, thousands of times, that he cannot look at me.

I clearly outlined in our roommate agreement that if he looks at me there will be consequences.

Make no mistake, consequences will be coming for him. On god.

Oh, ohhhhhh, you will not believe what he just did. You will NOT believe it. He just called his fucking mom. Oh, boohooooooo, you miss your mommy and you can't wait for Christmas??? Shut the fuck up.

No fucking way. He just asked how my day was. I was so close to forgetting I exist, and he just ruined all of my hard work. I was thiiiiis close to shifting to ethical trans-friendly Hogwarts and he FUCKED me.

OKAY. ENOUGH. I am on the phone requesting an emergency room swap as we speak. He just fell asleep with his head facing my direction. Does he really think this is okay behavior??? He is breathing SO loud. Why can't he breathe when I'm gone? What's next? Farting on my pillow pink-eye style?

It's over for him. I'm going to take my nimble fingers and squish him down like a bug. That's what you get, you freak. No more looking, no more breathing, and NO more sleeping at me.

Stop Asking To Switch Out Of Your Friday 8AM Everyone Else Is Hungover Too

BY OLIVIA MAES
January 15, 2025

The start of the quarter is rough for all of us, let's admit it. An end to a seemingly endless interlude from reality, our first days back remind us that we actually have to get our shit together and act like adults.

Well, most of us.

While we are at THE number one public university, it seems many students' frontal lobes have not yet developed, as they actually think someone will willingly swap their 8AM Friday class. You must be fucking stupid if you believe this.

Let's take Ben Duhr, a Biz Econ frat boy, as an example. Ben needed to get his diversity requirement done ASAP, but he was cursed with a late enrollment pass. Being the feminist that he is, he decided to take a Gender Studies class to get it done. Yet, when it came down to enrollment, the only discussion for this highly coveted class available was Friday at 8AM all the way in North Campus, a hike from his beautiful frat home on Gayley.

What did Ben do to counteract this issue? Did he decide to slow down his drinking? Of course not! (He just added cocaine to his morning routine as a "well deserved pick-me-up.") Did he decide to try this class again next quarter? God no! He just wants to get, in his own words, "this liberal bullshit over with." What Ben did do, however, was offer $50 to anyone who would take his discussion — not only on all of his social media, but also a Canvas discussion link that he so thoughtfully created, notifying all 200 people in his lecture of his situation. Was this successful? Take a guess.

Now, Ben is not only going to go to his first discussion reeking of pee, hand-foot-and-mouth disease, and some cheap ass vodka, but he is also probably not going to attend any of them after "syll week" in solidarity with feminists everywhere. This lightens his load, but the 19 other hungover students in his section are still trying not to yak before they're dismissed.

To combat dire situations like this, as a student body, we should accept that nobody gives a fuck and wants to switch with us. Take a few less chugs from the communal frat wine bag, take a hot shower, and take a minute to think you're not that special. We can all do this together: for the good of society, humanity as a whole, and our hungover community.

If Your Class Has A Week 9 Midterm, I Should Be Allowed To Skip The Final

BY MAGGIE KWAN
March 4, 2025

Merriam-Webster defines a midterm as an examination in the middle of an academic term. A UCLA quarter has 10 weeks. So what's the deal with having a midterm this week? Last time I checked, half of 10 is not 9.

What can we possibly learn in the barely two weeks between now and the 3-6 p.m. test on the Sunday eve of finals week? And who's to say we'll even finish the last two chapters that you think are oh-so-important for our mastery of this GE class? We all know you love going on long, stupid tangents and telling us at the end of class to read the rest of your 80-slide PowerPoint. Why can't we call it quits now? Sure, we'll miss a week of stuff, but we still got 90% of the way there! That's an A-!

I've done the work. I go to class (granted, I'm in the back of the lecture hall scrolling YikYak). I go to the hot TA's review sessions. So let's stop while we're ahead.

I'll do your little charade and take your "midterm" this week, but let's agree to take around 100% of whatever I get on this test and call that my grade for the final, plus or minus the curve. I've got a plane ticket to Cabo and a tan to work on, so I'll see you next quarter. Enjoy grading during spring break, loser.

He/Him Is Gender Neutral

BY DAVID DOUTMAN
May 6, 2025

Hey guys. A lot of guys seem to be getting mad at me for using he/him pronouns even when referring to guys who aren't guys. Some guys might think I'm being "misogynistic" or "transphobic" but I literally call every guy that. My best friend is a cis woman and I use he/him pronouns for him too. In fact, he liked it so much he cut his hair and changed his name to Oliver!

If gender is really a "social construct," then you guys shouldn't care what pronouns I choose to call you guys anyway. By treating every guy the same, I am actually being a radical gender abolitionist, which is several orders of magnitude woker than any of you guys will ever be. I'm literally just trying to combat internalized misandry.

You know, he/him was gender-neutral for centuries before all this modern woke nonsense started in the 1800s. If George Washington could do it, why can't I? He barely ever did anything morally questionable! As a guy with neurospiciness, it's really overwhelming for me to have to remember all your million different pronouns like he and she and they. Also, disagreeing with me is pretty problematic considering I'm literally an eighteen year-old MINOR!!

Each Study Buddy Should Count As A Body

BY AMANDA BAQUIR
March 22, 2025

Having a study buddy is so intimate. You see, I have one, and we have this transactional arrangement where we meet late at night in his dorm, handle our business, and then leave once we're satisfied. This happens week after week. And yet, despite the fact that I've spent more late nights with my study buddy than with any potential romantic partner, I know nothing about him. It's almost as if we're fuck buddies, but instead of hooking up sexually, we hook up academically. My love life may be dry, but my grades? Wet as hell.

Instead of getting "it" up, we get our grades up. It's that simple. There's no small talk, no "what's your favorite movie?" nonsense. I don't know if he's a dog person, where he's from, or even what his last name is. And I don't care.

He sees me at my most vulnerable — greasy hair, stained sweatpants, manic sobbing during finals week — and he's still willing to grind it out. Academically, of course. If that doesn't count as a soul tie, I don't know what does.

So, if we're counting bodies out here, let's not forget about study buddies. While UCLA might not be helping my love life, it's got me hooking up in the freakiest, most GPA-boosting way possible. And either way, I'm definitely smoking a cigarette afterward because this academic edging is too much for me.

RIVAL DANCE GROUPS ENTER “WEST SIDE STORY” – ESQUE FEUD OVER PARKING LOT 7

BY MAGGIE KWAN
February 25, 2025

WESTWOOD — Last night, after the Planes and the Rays, two of UCLA’s 10,000 hip-hop dance groups, engaged in a standoff over who had the right to practice in Parking Lot 7, the greasers resolved their conflict the only way they knew how: channeling West Side Story. “Look here, buster, we claimed this parking lot for our audition videos first, so if the other guys want to dance on our turf, they’re cruisin’ for a bruusin’,” said Rays captain Tony Nolasname, rhythmically snapping his fingers and flashing a switchblade comb. “So if you want to pass a message, tell those ankle biters to go mob the Central Ticket Office.” At press time, one member of each team privately confided to the Enabler that they found the other cute, despite their warring groups threatening to tear their love apart.

WESTWOOD — Disastrous reports from the Douchebag Research Institute (the minds that broke the Patagonia-vest epidemic and “being written by a woman”) claim that the newest trend for men attempting to seem socially conscious is a proclaimed love for the “walkable city.” “My understanding of these lesser-known cities with a REAL community, like Paris or Barthelona, really sets me apart on Hinge,” claims Guy McDifferent, a fourth year urban planning major who has never gone (and will never go) deeper into LA than taking an Uber to Saffron and Rose. “By the way, this election stuff is crazy. I studied abroad in Montreal, so I’m pretty worried about the student visa thing, too.” At press time, McDifferent was seen searching his 23andMe results for a vague Western European heritage to claim in his Instagram bio.

Time Flies: 2005 Baby Officially Queer Elder

BY SAM RUSK
February 10, 2025

WESTWOOD — Second-year theater major and non-binary messiah Cricket Vanderbilt made history this week as the first queer elder born after the invention of Facebook. “Ever since they outed me at a dolls vs. twink memorial diva-off underground techno event in Silver Lake, I’ve been honored to call Cricket my adopted muh-they-r,” tweeted aerospace engineering major Bratty Johnson from her Geek

Bar Pulse 200000X. “They showed me it was ok to be myself: a mean bisexual girl who chugs cigs, pulls trig, and loves to say the F-slur.” At press time, Vanderbilt was seen telling a gaggle of first-year Depop ambassadors that gay marriage was legalized after the fall of Berlin Stonewall in 1869.

Lucky Color! My Period Falls During Lunar New Year

BY MAGGIE KWAN
January 29, 2025

In Chinese culture, red represents good fortune, prosperity, and vitality. So I guess my period starting fifteen minutes into a two-hour lecture today means my pants are the luckiest place on earth right now, and my vagina is a red envelope.

I’m not entirely sure what this means for my luck this year, though, and my grandparents wouldn’t respond to my WhatsApp messages about it. I also don’t know if “started my period” translated correctly into Chinese. I might have called it “sad red time.”

According to my mom, doing laundry today washes away all my good fortune (but I don’t know if ‘good’ is the word I’d use right now.) So I guess I’ll sit in this mess and wait until 11:59 to book it to the laundry room. Gong xi fa cai or whatever.

“Romance Movies Have No Plot” Says Guy Whose Romance Has Even Less Plot

BY DAVID DOUTMAN
February 21, 2025

Despite the fact this his current relationship is loveless and boring, business economics major Gustavo Hettro complained that his girlfriend’s choice of Pride and Prejudice on movie night had ‘no plot.’ “This shit should be called pride and prejudice. Oh wow, he ‘gazed’ at you? Oh wow, you brushed hands for two seconds? It’s hella unrealistic. Me and my girl barely even talk these days, and she still basically worships me!” said Hettro, throwing his hands up dramatically and letting out a loud pshaw as his girlfriend pretended not to hear him. “Hey, Keira Knightley’s hot as fuck though.” Hettro’s girlfriend was last seen buying herself flowers for their fourth anniversary.

UCLA's Top 5 Sexually Eligible Statues

BY SHAYNE SWEET
March 12, 2025

5. John Wooden

It's no surprise that a man whose first and last names both mean penis is coming in hot on this list. John Wooden's sexy, stern, disapproving look is sure to light a fire in anyone who stopped talking to their dad a while ago. And don't be fooled by his vaguely fruity cocked hip — this statue swings his bronze john both ways. The quote on his pedestal talks about "self-satisfaction," but trust me, you won't have to do much self-satisfaction with Ol' Wooden in your life.

4. Walking Man

Just because Rodin's Walking Man has no head doesn't mean you can't give him head. If you're into junk that looks like metal scrambled eggs and the world's hardest pubes, get in line, because this is the man for you. Created in 1907 and fully decapitated, this statue is the perfect man to fulfill all your French Revolution fantasies (and I know you have them).

Fat Sal's And 5 Other UCLA Traditions That Suck Ass

BY GABE MCNEILL
March 28, 2025

1. Fat Sal's

The only time I've ever been to Fat Sal's was when I was either drunk or high out of my mind, which makes sense because there is no possible way any rational mind could justify going here. The only way anyone would ever go here is if you were so sloshed you could barely keep your eyes open long enough to see the insane menu items and even crazier prices next to them. If I ever spend twenty fucking dollars on a sandwich with the worst onion rings of my life inside it dead sober, I hope God smites me then and there for my hubris. While a Fat Sal's sandwich may satisfy drunk cravings, so does In-N-Out, the taco stands, and my roommate's leftovers — all of which are much cheaper. It boggles the mind that they sponsor athletic events. If Eric Dailey Jr. ever ate the "Fat Sal", I'm pretty sure he might have cardiac arrest and our men's

Top 5 Children Of Tech CEOs To Hold Ransom For An Internship

BY MAX COLEMAN
March 12, 2025

Well, well, well. It's almost summer, and I bet you don't even have an internship. Pathetic. How about instead of wallowing in your hundred unread LinkedIn messages, you get off your ass and do something about it? Lucky for you, I've found a secret internship tip that recruiters DON'T want you to know about. Enough sending resumes — it's time to start sending ransom photos of innocent children to their tech CEO parents.

5. Sami Pichai (11 yrs old)

You might think it'd be tough to nab the son of Google's Sundar Pichai. Don't worry! He has soccer practice every Monday and Wednesday from 3-6 p.m. at Pine-wood Elementary School, taekwondo practice on Tuesday and Thursday from 3-5 p.m. at Ohana Martial Arts Center in Los Altos, and on Fridays, he almost always gets a sweet treat at the local Yogurtland on his way home from school. He's practically

Enabler Reviews: Big Blue Bus Anti-Homeless Architecture

BY EMMA SEARING
March 16, 2025

Big Blue Bus Bench Architect, You never fail to charm me. Your ingenuity in creating unusable bus benches is truly inspiring. While the impoverished LA Metro would simply make a bench with a few dividers to discourage the homeless, you go beyond. You push the envelope of anti-homeless architecture in a way that resembles the hostile architecture of a much smaller city with two public transit riders.

Every time I arrive at a stop, I marvel at the blue-colored monstrosity that can be called a bench only in name. The lousy two-centimeter circular shade and complete lack of cleanliness only further adds to your brilliance of creating deceptively horrible bus stops. Master Architect, the subtleties of design do not elude you. As a fan, an admirer, I am stunned at the sheer creativity and pure disdain for the poor you imbue in every bench. Below I have

Top 5 Goonable Robots

BY DAVID DOUTMAN
March 7, 2025

Robots. One of the greatest and most attractive inventions ever thought up. They can help you with chores, they have superhuman strength, and best of all, they know how to handle the females. Speaking of females, scientists have found that women now have more sex with robots than men. This amazing step forward for feminism had me thinking about which robots I would like to have sex with now that women are off the table. Hi, I'm David Doutman from the Westwood Enabler and this is my list of the top five robots that will make anyone's genitals explode. Grab yourself a snack and a glass of motor oil, and try not to reach through the screen to kiss some of these beautiful hunks of metal. I know it's hard, but it can't be nearly as hard as I am right now!
